

Bhagavad Gita

The Bhagavad Gita

The yoga taught in the Bhagavad Gita is aimed at fulfilling dharma, that is to say 'responsibility for the maintenance of order,' at all levels — within oneself, in the family, in society, on this planet and in the cosmos. There is much attention given to right action, sacred knowledge and love in this book, perhaps the single most important text to originate from India.

The program offers a unique opportunity to explore this text, an example of ancient wisdom in a modern interactive way, connecting eastern and western philosophy. The program consists of a seminar followed by a retreat. Participants can decide to register for one of the parts or join both.

The weekend seminar mainly consists of lectures on the Bhagavad Gita. During the week days the nature of the seminar changes from lectures to a retreat. After the morning lecture a meditative exploration may lead to a deeper understanding of some major shlokas.

The speaker

Ravi Ravindra, PhD is a inspiring spiritual teacher, scholar, and leading international speaker on religion, science, and spirituality. A native of India, he emigrated to Canada and is Professor Emeritus at Dalhousie University, in Halifax, where he served as a professor in three Departments: Comparative Religion, Philosophy, and Physics. He is the author of fourteen books on religion, science, mysticism, and spirituality. Ravi Ravindra's spiritual search has led him to the teachings of J. Krishnamurti, G.I. Gurdjieff, Zen, Yoga and to a deep immersion in the mystical teachings of the Indian and Christian traditions.
